

What you need to know as a Director of a REIT manager

How Boards can drive the Sustainability Agenda (in-person seminar)

Sustainability issues are becoming an increasingly important component of an organization's strategy and as corporate stewards, the Board of Directors play a critical role in driving this change. In this seminar, specially designed for Independent Directors ("IDs") of REIT managers, we look at some of the key developments in ESG regulations, reporting, finance and benchmarking and highlight what IDs need to be mindful of when discharging their duties.

David Berger

Sustainability Manager
Advisory & Consulting
Colliers

David Berger is an experienced building energy analyst and sustainability consultant. At Colliers, he works with building owners, managers, and operators to reduce energy and improve buildings through targeted approaches. By partnering with clients to address near- and long-term capital planning, he recommends building upgrades that yield significant energy- and cost-savings, reduced operations and maintenance expenditures, and improved resident comfort.

David develops strategic plans to improve the energy use intensity and performance of portfolios. Drawing upon his experience conducting ASHRAE Level 1, 2, and 3 audits and retro-commissioning across a range of commercial and multi-family residential buildings, he identifies additional opportunities for improvement at the building level.

David also works with clients to create and execute sustainability and net zero master plans. His experience includes mechanical systems, utility analysis, benchmarking, cogeneration, photovoltaics, energy storage systems, and building forensics. David enjoys bridging the gap between engineers and clients.

Prior to joining Colliers, David worked as a sustainability consultant for a management and strategy consulting firm.

David has a B.E. in Civil Engineering from Cooper Union and a B.S. in Biology from Boston College.
